GAMECOCKS PROVE BIGGEST ATTRACTION

Fanciers of Prominence in Sci ciety Spend Sunday at Poultry Show.

DOZEN CLASSES JUDGED

Although many other breeds were judged at the Poultry Show at Madison Square Garden yesterday the pit game classes were the biggest attraction. James Glasgow of Mahwah, N. J., judged them and as soon as he began his work the judging enclosure was surrounded by a host of anxious watchers.

the judging enclosure was surrounded by a host of anxious watchests.

Among the gamecock fanciers, women and men who are fond of thoroughbred horses, dogs and poultry, who gathered about Pit Game Alley were J. Robinson Beard, Samuel Willets, P. H. H. Frelinghuysen and Max Behr, Mrs. Charlotte E. Paddock, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Reed, G. Howland Robbins, F. B. Wyborg, P. W. Kendall, Andrew Albright, Dr. E. H. Berendsohn, Harry T. Peters, Joseph Chadwick, Jr., and Theodore A. Havemeyer. There were twelve classes for pit games, with an aggregate entry just under 100. In the Black Reds, the blue for the best cock was won by Richard Marple's bird, a tally for Westchester county, while the Great South Bay sportsmen, who enter as Wildwood Farms, won is hens with one of their own breeding at Sayville. The blue in cockerels was won by Samuel Willets, one of a strain that his family has bred at Roslyn, L. L. for half a century, while the best pullet was a Staten laland entry of J. M. Vanderbilt, Among the Brown Reds the outstanding winsers were John Irwin, a Manhattan exhibitor, and Wildwood Farms. Some of yesterday's more important awards:

With the sales manager, factory manager, advertising manager and other officials all in New York, the factory received during last week 1,000 orders for immediate shipment. This is considered a record for this time of year and effectively knocks out the old superstition that automobiles can't be sold in quantities in the winter. Three hundred of these thousand orders came in one day—Monday.

SIXES ONLY FOR PAIGE.

Company Stands Pat on the Season's Idea of Two Models.

The Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company stands pat for the new season in spite of all exceptional conditions in the labor and material market and unmoved by tendencies here and there to experiment with fancies in design and mechanics. The Paige company, which is confining itself exclusively to the six field, opens the year 1916 with two models, the five passenger Six "38" and the seven passenger Six "46." This is the Paige line and the company's exhibits at all automobile shows for the year will be based on these models in a wide variety of body styles. The announcement is made also that the company has figured on a production of about 20,000 cars and is guaranteeing its 1,500 dealers immediate deliveries.

Of the two basic models of the Paige line special attention is called to the light Six, the Fleetwood Six "38," a five passenger car, because the changes and improvements in this are more marked than in the larger model, the Fairfield seven passenger Six "46." The Fleetwood Six "38," which replaces the Hollywood, last season's light Six, is offered as a better car with greater values from every angle. It is described as a car with a bigger, roomier, more beautiful body, with a larger, more powerful and smoother running motor, and with higher quality upholstery, paint and finish. Claims First Sale at Palace Show

THE Hudson Motor Car Company again claims the honor of having made the first sale at the Automobile Show in Grand Central Palace. Five minutes after the doors were thrown open to the public on Friday afternoon the white town car had a new owner. The body is finished in a glossy white and the interior is in white and black stripes, following the season's mode of those striking colors.

COMFORTS FOR WOMEN WHITE HAS BIG DISPLAY

"Just as in life, where it's the little things that count, they are of equal importance in the automobile business," said John N. Willys at the Overland booth in the Grand Central Palace.
"There are certain things which of a necessity must be done by every manufacturer of automobiles in order to produce a satisfactory machine. The varying degrees of perfection in design, mathematical materials and the United States are represented among the score of different makes of high grade, or as some term them high grade, or as some term them high priced, cars which are included in this year's salon.
